TALKING BY WIRELESS TO MARS

"If the stars are inhabited by intelligent beings," says the Marchese Marconi, "I see no reason why we should not communicate with them."

BY R. HOWARD SPRING.

Thirty years ago the first wireless message was flashed across the Atlantic. Whether will wireless messages be flashing thirty years hence? May we, conceivably, be in touch with Mars?

I put the question to the Marchese Marconi, who had received me in his room at Marconi House. I expected a scientific cold douche in reply.

To my surprise Marconi said: "Supposing the stars are inhabited by intelligent beings, having natures something akin to our own, then I do not see any reason why we should not communicate with them by wireless."

"Do you think that may come within thirty years?"
"It may come before then; it may come much later. I don't know. I only that if you grant the existence of intelligent beings there is no reason why wireless should not reach them."

NOT A GAMBLER.

This, I thought, is a surprising conversation. I am not talking to a Jules Verne or H. G. Wells—some gambler in scientific "futures." I am talking to a scientist of genius, to the man who has made possible a complete transformation, in important respects, of the habit of the peoples of the world.

But that was not the only surprise. I had waited for the Marchese in the anteroom which is furnished as a museum. Many of the pieces of apparatus which Marconi has used in a lifetime of research are gathered there. It is an impressive collection, and I wondered what manner of man this could be who had so powerfully affected the life of his generation.

"You won't find him easy to talk to," said my attendant. He opened the polished mahogany door with heavy gilt handles and announced me.

The Marchese Marconi was delightfully easy to talk to. That was the greatest and most agreeable surprise of all.

He advanced across the thick carpet holding out his hand and bidding me welcome in the quiet level voice that did not change throughout the interview. A clean-shaven, pale face, with eyes that seem at times to be beyond the thing he is looking at. He wears a suit of navy blue.

DREAMS CAME TRUE.

His courtesy and simplicity are immediately impressive. Under the window is a large globe—the sort of globe old seamen used to take when they set out to circumnavigate the world in four or five years. It seemed a queer thing to find in the room of a man who has beaten Puck's trick of circumnavigating the world in forty minutes.

I recalled to his mind—it was perhaps hardly necessary—that this was the thirtieth anniversary of his great achievement. "It must have been an extraordinary moment for you," I said. "You alone must have seen what it was going to mean. Has all that you then had in mind come true?"

He leaned back in his chair and his mind ranged over thirty years. At last he spoke slowly: "A great deal—practically all—of what I had in mind has become true; and, indeed, a lot more. But there were some things I did not foresee. The very quick development of broadcasting was one. On the other hand, some things have been slower than I expected. Communication over long distances took many more years than I expected to become a practical commercial thing."

"Broadcasting," I said, "is, of course, what your work means to the million. What do you think of the practical use of your discoveries in this matter? There are those who run it down and say it tends to destroy individuality."

work of making yards and yards of ruching; in outlining fine lace designs with silk and bead embroidery, or in appliqué work when lace is applied to chiffon or velvet on to georgette. The fact remains that the trimming of a gown is a very important detail these days, and adds much to the originality of the model. On one gown a modified bustle effect is achieved with loops of the material while frills are introduced on another model in an apron effect. A model of a different type has many notes that make for chic and is beautifully cut in sections, which give the slimming line to the figure.

"LE DERNIER COI" FOR EVENING.

ROUND THE SHOPS.

[By "EVE."]

Lane, Crawford's.—Some new evening gowns are seen in the ladies' saloon this week and one is impressed with the clever handwork that goes to decorate so many of the models this season. It may be in fine hem-stitching in delicate embroidery, in that patience-taxing Gordon's, Ltd.—The first shipment of the early spring styles is seen at Gordon's this week. Subtle and kid seems to be the favoured medium for the formal afternoon mode, and very smart models are seen trimmed with lizard, crocodile and snake skin. Among this new collection there are a number of walking shoes, which, this season, are not the plain ones we have seen these last few years. They are mostly in two leathers or leather and raptile. Among the new styles a very striking brown leather lace-up shoe is trimmed with strips of lizard in a fancy design while another is in deep beige with a cut-away showing an underlay of lizard.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop's January Sale is still going strong and there are still some wonderful bargains to be picked up. Prices of hats are especially attractive and are really remarkably good value as they are the latest modes made by famous American houses. One lot is priced as low as $5.00 each while others are offered at $7.50 and $10. The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop is justly famous for its sports suits, and these are being offered during the sale at a reduction of 25 per cent.—an opportunity that should not be missed.

Maison Marnac this week is having a clearance sale on all furs so this is an opportunity to possess one of these delightful models at an extremely low price. They are all of the very best Russian furs made into the latest coat styles. Those who do a great deal of walking will probably prefer to retain as long as possible the short coat rather longer than the hip-length models. These are light in weight and fashionable into the bargain. Mole is one of the most becoming furs, leopard skin and Canadian beaver is very fashionable and white rabbit, which is so popular now, is seen among this collection.

Femina is holding a special sale and just how attractive and smart the new dresses are can be seen at this attractive salon in Gloucester Building. The dress-making department is under European supervision, and, judging from the model copies, I can assure you of the excellent workmanship.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE'S
NOTEBOOK.

When the silk is being washed, a little salt added to the water helps to fix the colour, and also keeps the material soft.

If salt is not added till potatoes are nearly cooked it will help to make them dry and floury. To whiten potatoes, especially old ones, a teaspoonful of vinegar should be added just before they are cooked.

Old gramophone needles make splendid nails for use when framing pictures.

Old pieces of blanket will make the inside of a tea-cosy or iron-holder or a cover for your hot-water bottle.

Melt candle ends in a saucer and draw some short lengths of string through the warm wax. These make excellent tapers when set.

When washing curtains, if the tops and bottoms are tacked together, they are not so liable to stretch and pull out of shape.

Paraffin oil and powdered bath-brick mixed together, cleans sinks easily and effectively.

As a delicious savoury try morella cherries covered with grated nuts, wrapped in bacon, and laid on little pieces of toast that have been dipped in bacon fat.

As a sandwich, a famous actor evolved the happy thought of spreading a piece of ham thinly with marmalade, before laying it between slices of bread.

Tomato jelly may be substituted for marmalade.

TRY SOME OF THESE--

Over any white soup, such as potato, artichoke, or celery, grate some raw carrot.

With roast beef try, as a relish, either green or red gooseberry jam, a popular fancy just now in America.

Bread sauce is excellent with mutton cutlets and with any fish.

Over stewed fruits, or fruit salad poured a little of the marshmallow cream now to be got at any London store or grocer's shop.

A sprinkling of grated nuts is an improvement to a dish of stewed prunes.

WOMAN'S PAGE

WHEN YOU BUY FABRICS.

Although considerable success has been achieved in the task of securing pleasing surface effects without sacrifice of hard-wearing properties, it is still essential, when buying fabrics, to decide whether ability to withstand hard wear is more important than decorative effect, or vice versa, and what sort of heat-retaining, draught-excluding or dust-resisting properties are desirable. A knowledgeable scrutiny of the texture of the fabrics available will then enable some sort of a balance to be secured between these various requirements, with definite insistence upon the most important.

Qualities in Velvet.

When buying velvet certain qualities will be noted to have a "will back." This gives a fast pile which will hold firmly against friction, thus rendering the velvet useful for dresses, gowns and heavy curtains and hangings. For trimming, millinery and light curtains a velvet with a plain back may prove serviceable; it is when these velvets are bought for hard wear that they may soon begin to shed their pile.

For hard wear a plain weave which distributes the threads in such a way that they are all about equally exposed to wear cannot be bettered. In these fabrics the points to look for are an even cross-weaving of the threads and an absence of broken or twisted threads, knots and lumps, and deviation of the threads from a perfectly straight passage from one side of the cloth to the other.

There are essentially decorative weaves in which beauty of design is the effect desired. When buying these fabrics it is wise to make sure that they are of very good quality and workmanship, otherwise the threads which build up the design may break easily, yield to the slightest friction, and give much trouble during the wash.

HEALTH IN THE HOME.

SPASMS.

[By A FAMILY DOCTOR.]

Occasionally as one is going off to sleep one arm or leg or the whole body gives a terrific jerk and abruptly brings one to one's senses. I have occasionally known "start" of this sort to resemble a terrific and sudden blow on the head; you wake, however, to find you were mistaken.

These spasms occur mostly as you are going off to sleep, but sometimes they may occur while you are reading or resting by day in a chair. They may be rather frightening if you have not experienced them before; but generally they merely mean that you are overworked, tired, worried or suffering in sufficient sleep or food.

Very much less commonly they are of deeper significance. But that is so only when they begin to occur in a person who has never suffered from them before and in whom there is not present of the causes of exhaustion above mentioned. The diseases in which these spasms sometimes appear early are various nervous disorders, toxic diseases of the thyroid gland, and excessive consumption of alcohol.

But do not ignore entirely those starts or spasms. Remember that they imply that you are overdoing things. If possible take a holiday, get more sleep, more exercise, more mental recreation. Although these spasms are seldom of any serious import you should regard them as a warning to take yourself in hand before more serious manifestations of overwork appear.

CATARACT.

Cataract is due to a variety of causes, but the commonest, and the one described here, is known as the senile cataract. It is a disease of advanced life, but may occasionally be seen as early as 45 years of age. As a rule both eyes are involved, but usually one in advance of the other. The disease begins as a small opacity in the substance of the crystalline lens of the eye, which slowly spreads and finally produces complete loss of vision in the affected eye.

Extraction of this opaque lens by means of operation is the only way to restore the sight, and this is best done when the lens is completely opaque and the cataract is mature—or, as it is sometimes termed, "ripe." Sometimes when the matter is of some urgency, artificial ripening is resorted to.

Generally, operation is only undertaken when the cataract of one eye is complete and the cataract of the other eye has progressed so far as to interfere considerably with normal vision. Following operation, fair vision is obtained by using a powerful convex lens in place of the natural one which has been removed.

Scrutinise Patterned Surfaces.

With all patterned fabrics it is wise to scrutinise the surface more closely than usual, for flaws are not always at first sight apparent. Unevenness in the pile of a plain dyed velvet shows up at first sight; a pattern or design may mask the flaw in the most deceptive way, but it will cause the pile to shed after a little wear all the same.

A close weave makes for hard wear, and so does fineness of the threads.

If warmth is required an open weave is better. The air enmeshed in an open or a cellular weave conducts heat away from the body very slowly, and such a fabric is "warm," hence its utility for underwear and blankets.

Another method of adding to the warmth of a fabric is to give it a rough or fluffy surface. The former has a stimulating effect on the skin, and the latter acts as an air trap. Many shrewd housewives, however, prefer the modern smooth surfaced blankets with a cellular weave which gives warmth without weight, because a fluffy pile tends to become damaged in the wash.

Another advantage of smooth surfaces is that they do not tend to collect the dust, but in these days of action cleaners this point is not so important, except for loose covers and those light curtains which are exposed to the sunlight. The latter may make the fibres brittle and likely to break in the wash, so that a smooth surface is desirable, because washing can then be delayed as long as possible.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER. THE PERSEVERING SAND MARTIN.

The little sand martin that makes those familiar holes along the front of precipitous cliffs by the sea or in sand-pits and steep railway cuttings, is the least known of our British swallows. We see it, however, with its rusty brown back and white underparts as it hovers before its hole or makes its wavering flight along the face of the cliff. We also hear the low monotonous note which it utters as it flies.

Most of the sand martins have now started on their flight southwards for the winter, but some are still to be seen, and we should look out for these now, for the last of them will have vanished by the end of the month.

The sand martin is really a very persevering little bird. It is a matter of general surprise that a creature so small and with such a weak bill, can dig out such a long tunnel in the cliff. Often the burrows, which slant upwards, are three or four feet long, and they end in a chamber about six inches in diameter. In this the nest of grass or straw is built, and lined with feathers. Then five or six glossy white eggs are laid, and soon the little sand martins are seen. The bird excavates its tunnels not by digging, as a man does with a trowel, but by picking out the grains of sand or earth one by one with its beak and scraping away the matter with its feet as the work proceeds. Male and female take it in turns to excavate the tunnel, and they work only in the morning, taking the afternoon off for meals and play.

If in the course of their digging they come upon some obstacle, such as a large stone buried in the cliff, they abandon the tunnel and start a new one. That is why we see so many half-finished tunnels in cliffs and cuttings.

MOVIE NEWS

On the Screen in Hong Kong.

"FIVE AND TEN."

MARION DAVIES IN SPARKLING SHOW.

"Five and Ten," which opened at the Queen's Theatre yesterday, is another of the type of films which Marion Davies excels in—light comedy.

The story concerns a millionaire who, in trying to become the world's leading five-and-ten-cent-store merchant, entirely overlooks the happiness of his family, a young wife, a capricious daughter, and an idealistic son.

Marion Davies in the Fox drama, "Hush Money."

The attractive daughter is tolerated by society only because of her father's millions. When she falls in love with a poor architect, it seems that her money and his social standing will be a good combination. However, it is not as simple as all that, and the girl discovers ironically that her money is her greatest handicap when the man she loves is convinced that she is "buying" him.

Marion Davies as the daughter of the millionaire, is brilliant while the supporting cast, including Leslie Howard, Richard Bennett and Irene Rich, help to make the picture an enjoyable entertainment.

"BAD GIRL."

A "REAL LIFE" STORY.

"Bad Girl," Vivian Dolmar's study of motherhood as it affects a typical young couple of New York's working class has now reached the screen with Sally Eilers and James Dunn in the co-featured leads.

Frank Borzage directed this Fox film production which will be the featured attraction at the King's Theatre beginning next Sunday. Much of the emotional appeal of the film is said to be due to Borzage's aptitude for portraying the drama of life and love.

Briefly, the story deals with a young couple who loved too well before they were married. Sally Eilers, as the heroine, is shadowed by the stigma of being known as a "Bad Girl," whereupon her sweetheart, enacted in the film by James Dunn, agrees to marry her.

Sally's happiness at this prospect is dimmed by her brother's cruel treatment of her in forcing her to leave home, but it is soon renewed when she is married and settled in a comfortable little flat. Then the realization that a baby is coming brings conflict into their home.

Their worries, fears, and sometimes laughable experience during this trying time in their lives make up the body of the drama which is rich in human interest.

An admirable supporting cast includes Minna Gombell, Frank Darion and William Pawley.

Edwin Burke, author and dramatist of many past stage and screen successes, adapted "Bad Girl" for the screen version.

British News Reels only, will be shown. It is the intention of the management to hold these performances every Wednesday and Saturday and their enterprise is, we think, assured of the success it deserves.

Each programme will last about half an hour and will undoubtedly be a boon to those who have time in town and have that time to spare. The prices of admission are also attractive—30 cents upstairs and 20 cents downstairs, including entertainment tax.

We refer our readers to an advertisement appearing in this issue where to-morrow's programme is given in full.

"LASCA OF THE RIO GRANDE."

THRILLS AT CENTRAL THEATRE.

How would you like to see a real motion picture—one that moves with all of the romance and action of the old quick-shooting, Spanish-flavoured Border days?

Well, we have it for you. It is Universal's "Lasca of the Rio Grande," which will be the next attraction at the Central.

Remember Lee Carrillo of "Mister Antonio," "Lombardi, Ltd." and "Hell Bound"? You should see him as the politely murderous half-breed cattle owner with an eye for women, in this one! And Dorothy Burgess, the seductive, fiery little senorita who played the menace to Warner Baxter in "In Old Arizona"? She will give you the season's thrill as the dance-hall girl, Lasca. She's better than she was in "Arizona."

John Mack Brown, erstwhile all-American football star and handsome hero of "Our Dancing Daughters," "Billy the Kid" and "Coquette," plays a big, strapping Texas Ranger in "Lasca of the Rio Grande." Slim Summerville, the lanky comedian, and the squatty Frank Campeau engaged in a dust that you will remember for a long time.

The story, based upon the romantic Frank Desprez's poem, "Lasca," retains all of the romance, action and colour of the poetic creation, and Edward Luehmle, the director, has done an all-round excellent job of the picture.

INNOVATION AT KING'S THEATRE.

BRITISH NEWS REELS AT TIPPIN TIME.

An interesting and very welcome innovation will commence at the King's Theatre to-morrow when, from 11.45 a.m. to 2 p.m., a continuous performance, showing British News Reels only, will be shown. (Continued on Previous Column.)

JACKIE COOPER'S GENIUS.

GOOD ALL-ROUND ACTING IN "THE CHAMP."

There is one performance which is even outstanding in a company of excellent ones, that is the acting of Jackie Cooper in "The Champ" at the Empire, writes the London Morning Post film critic. It is not too much to say that this boy is a genius.

"The Champ."

A great many good judges of film acting, particularly in the ranks of star film actors, regard Jackie Cooper's performance in "The Champ" as the best piece of acting of the year. That was an astonishing piece of work, but it is nothing to his "Dink in 'The Champ'." In this film he is up against, and acting with, Wallace Beery throughout the film, and it is no discredit to Beery that Jackie Cooper leaves him "stone cold." There is not one moment in this film when this boy of nine is not real and natural. Never once does he make a false gesture or a false intonation. His performance is about as near an act of genius as can be imagined. Whatever his future may be, there cannot be the slightest doubt about his present. He has got what so few child actors ever obtain—natural grace, natural pathos, and a most sturdy masculinity. One almost has the tendency to prophesy that he can't be spoiled in the future as an actor. On the whole "The Champ," although in many ways it is an astonishing piece of film-making, does not quite come up to one's expectations. It is admirably directed by King Vidor. It is admirably acted by Roscoe Ates, Ilse Hamilton, and, especially by the little misger boy friend of Jackie Cooper, over and above the tremendous performances of Wallace Beery and Cooper himself. But half-way through the scenario throw his hat over the most sentimental of wind-mills, and so became unconvincing. There is also one of the best film fights I have seen in this picture. It is a film most definitely to be seen by all lovers of superlative acting.

saved when, in a dramatic appearance before a jury, her father bares his own sins to save his child. Leslie Howard, last seen in "Five and Ten," and Clark Gable, who will be remembered for his outstanding work opposite Joan Crawford in "Dance, Pools, Dana," and with Wallace Beery in "The Secret Six," share leading man honours in the supporting cast with the heavy character role going to Lionel Barrymore, who again appears before the camera after an interval of directing.

SHEARER FILM, SOCIETY AND THE UNDERWORLD.

Society and the underworld, the sordidness of Chinatown dens and the beauty of Yosemite Valley are contrasted in "A Free Soul" Norman Shearer's newest starring picture, which will come to the Queen's Theatre shortly. The Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer production is based on the novel of Adela Rogers St. Johns. Miss Shearer plays the daughter of a brilliant though drunken lawyer. The ultra-modern touchings of the father give her an idea of feminine "freedom" that in the end sends the structure of life crashing about her ears. Torn between the love of a gambler and a society man, her happiness is finally (Continued on next Column.)

NOTED VISITOR TO COLONY.

GOVERNOR-GENERAL OF INDO-CHINA.

His Excellency, M. Pierre Pasquier, Governor-General of Indo-China, arrived in the Colony yesterday on the French mine sweeper Inconstant.

The distinguished visitor was welcomed by Captain Colman, A.D.C. to His Excellency the Governor, and Lieut. Cameron, A.D.C. to His Excellency the General Officer Commanding. M. Pasquier's visit is unofficial but he was entertained at Government House last night.

To-day, the principal function will be an official reception in the morning at Victoria Lodge, the residence of the French Consul-General. M. Pasquier will sail this afternoon on the cruiser Waldeck Rousseau for Manila, when he will return the recent visit of Governor-General Dwight Davis. He will stay and attend the army manoeuvres which are being held in Manila towards the end of the month.

BELLIOS SCHOOL CONCERT.

LARGE ATTENDANCE AT HELENA MAY.

The Helena May Institute was crowded yesterday evening when the girls of the Bellios Public School presented an old Chinese play, "The Story of Young Kwai Fei."

The play was composed by the students of the school who were assisted in the classical dances contained in the play by Mr. Lau Fat Mun. The amateur actresses looked very attractive in their charming old Chinese costumes.

The story depicts an episode in the life of Young Kwai Fei, a noted Chinese beauty who lived in the Tang Dynasty, and who exercised much influence at court. She ultimately married the King and was estimated in a position of importance in his household.

The King receives an official document which, owing to the involved expressions, he is unable to understand. His counsellor suggests that a certain Li Po be sent for to explain the letter and write a reply. Li Po was known through China for his exquisite poetry, but his own behaviour was not of the same standard. It pleased his fancy to accede to the King's request but only at the price of humiliating the King. Kwai Fei and the King's Minister. The King he ordered to fan him while he wrote. Kwai Fei to hold his ink box, and the Minister to take off his shoe. After persuasion by Mui Fei, the King agrees and the others follow suit. Li Po writes the letter, is rewarded, and sent away.

THE NATIONAL INCOME.

£500,000,000 DOWN IN 1931.

BURDEN OF DIRECT TAXATION.

A fall of £500,000,000 in the national income in 1931, as compared with 1929, was estimated by Mr. W. H. Coates, in a paper entitled "The Citizens' Purse," read before the Manchester Statistical Society.

Mr. Coates is a director of Imperial Chemical Industries, and was formerly Director of Statistics at the Inland Revenue Department.

He estimated the national income in 1931 and in two previous years as follows:—

1931	£3,842,000,000
1929	£4,350,000,000
1928	£4,213,000,000

He pointed out that there has been a decline in prices between the earlier and later periods, but held that this factor was insufficient to account for the fall in income reflected in the above figures.

Surtax and Death Duties.

Dealing with the burden of taxation, Mr. Coates estimated that there was 85,000 surtax payers with a total income of £467,000,000. Out of this they had to provide £107,500,000 in income tax, and £76,000,000 to surtax, making altogether £183,500,000. In addition, he estimated that £200,000,000 in death duties would fall on the same class in 1932, so that out of the total income of £467,000,000 no less than £383,500,000 would pass into the hands of the tax gatherer.

Mr. Coates said that it would be by means of a fight from the currency that any attempt to curtail taxation to the point of extortion would be defeated.

The Public Conscience.

Mr. Coates in conclusion said that no Chancellor of the Exchequer could afford to be indifferent to the reactions of the people to taxation. His attention must be paid not merely to the scientific view of the effect of any particular tax, or to taxation as a whole, but to the popular view. It was not, he said, so much that which was true which must be regarded, but that which people thought was true. The difference was often governed by the common standard of education in such matters and by the general level of political activity and interest in national affairs. When those levels were high, taxation was more likely to be on a scientific plane than if they were low. In the long run the limits of taxable capacity were set by the public conscience.

A dispassionate judgment of the burden of our present taxation, particularly of direct taxation, in relation to the shrunken national income, suggested that except for a limited period it would endanger our whole economic structure. The limits of taxable capacity on a gold standard basis had not only been reached but passed.

More in Rates and Taxes.

On the basis of Mr. Coates' figures for the national income the percentage paid away in taxation in different years may be seen from the following table:—

	1931.	1929.	1924.
	(£200,000,000)
Taxes	709	655	890
Rates	191	191	162

Total

Percentage of Nat. income 23.4 19.2 20.2

In 1931, as compared with 1929, about £35,000,000 more is being paid away in taxation, out of an income which is £100,000,000 less.

gests that a certain Li Po be sent for to explain the letter and write a reply. Li Po was known through China for his exquisite poetry, but his own behaviour was not of the same standard. It pleased his fancy to accede to the King's request but only at the price of humiliating the King. Kwai Fei and the King's Minister. The King he ordered to fan him while he wrote. Kwai Fei to hold his ink box, and the Minister to take off his shoe. After persuasion by Mui Fei, the King agrees and the others follow suit. Li Po writes the letter, is rewarded, and sent away.

HONG KONG, JANUARY 22, 1932.

THE NEW GARDEN CITY.

The Hong Kong Engineering and Construction Company have fairly earned the commendations passed on their enterprise when the Honorable the Colonial Secretary cut the first sod on the site of the proposed new Garden City Scheme at Kowloon. Their faith in the future of the Colony and the bold and thorough lines on which they have planned will, we are sure, be amply justified. As the Hon. Mr. J. P. BRAGA said in the course of his eloquent outline of the scheme, the Directors of the Company "in the maturity of their years, experience and knowledge of Hong Kong, and the inherent stability of the Colony, look forward confidently to the materialisation of the project."

If the faith of such a body of men, including among them such experts in local property as Sir Robert Ho Tung and the well-known financial advisers to the French Mission, were not enough, one would only have to drive down Prince Edward Road to gain assurance as to the prospects of this neighbourhood. Where hills stood a few years ago a pleasant city has arisen on level ground. Swamps have been filled, yet more hills are being carried away and from Lai Chi Kok Road almost to Old Kowloon, City European-style houses are being built. Nor is development only to the north of Prince Edward Road. Many houses already stand on the south side of this great thoroughfare, every site is staked, and a flourishing colony has sprung up along the north end of Waterloo Road. Now the Engineering and Construction Company plans a new city with substantial houses standing in good-sized gardens. The largest plots have an area of 45,000 square feet, or, say, a forty-yard front with one hundred and thirty yards depth. This is not exactly a country estate, but it means a very pleasant strip of garden well up to the standard of one of London's "pleasant and easily accessible residential districts" in Surrey or Hertfordshire, where men of substantial, if not gigantic means make their abode.

It will be interesting to see whether the residential centre of the Colony in the course of time shifts to Kowloon. In any case the process will be very gradual. The Peak, with all its disadvantages of fog and inconvenient distances, is a great citadel where site holders are not allowing their defences to fall into decay. Once it was thought that business premises might cross the harbour, but the Central district, thanks to the development of Queen's Road and Pedder Street, remains "The City," and office property tends to concentrate rather than disperse.

Perhaps the prospects of getting gardens will prove the lure of Kowloon, where the grounds are not only of larger size but of greater stability of soil in times of typhoon and deluge. The Colonial Secretary was, however, clearly of opinion that Kowloon was to be for the man of moderate means. Some of the houses of Kowloon Tong suggest a very ample moderation, and Mr. BRAGA indicated that all pockets would be accommodated.

It was encouraging for the Directors of the Engineering and Construction Company, and indeed for all Kowloon residents, to have the Colonial Secretary with them for Wednesday's ceremony. The Hon. Mr. SOUTHWORTH will be able from personal observation, to endorse (when times improve) Mr. BRAGA's plea for certain amenities in the matter of police protection and postal facilities in the newly developed areas. He will be able to tell his colleagues in official circles and on the Legislative Council that these demands are not wholly founded on imaginative enthusiasm. Perhaps he may even persuade some of them to order their chauffeurs to make a small detour when next on the way to Fanling in order that they may see for themselves what is being done in Kowloon.

So rapid is the growth of Kowloon that the time may even come when a Government official of medium seniority will be ordered to take up residence there and devote his working energies to its affairs. What a pity the old Chater Bungalow could not have been acquired as the residence of the Secretary for the Mainland—the proper title as we have already suggested, for the holder of such an appointment in Kowloon. But, as it may interest senior officials and others who enjoyed the magnificent hospitality of the late Sir PAUL CHATER to know the house and the whole garden have been demolished. Other sites, however, still remain and no doubt the enterprise of those "prepared to stand or fall by the future of Kowloon," will be rewarded by seeing not only a Post Office, but a couple of branch offices, another police station, and even an official residence over in the Peninsula.

BE SURE OF THE BRAKES.

A giant locomotive moved majestically out of the railway engine shed the other morning, preparatory to being coupled to a long train for a fast journey from London to Scotland. In the cab sat a veteran driver watching carefully the performance of his son, a young man just beginning his service as a master of the speeding wheels and rods. Suddenly the grizzled driver reached out his hand as the engine gathered speed and applied the mechanical power controlling the brakes. The locomotive instantly slackened its speed. The son looked quizzically at his father, failing to understand the reason for his action.

"Before you start out on a run be absolutely sure your brakes are in good working order," admonished the veteran driver with a smile. "That's one of the first rules of the line—and it is sure to prevent things going wrong in time of emergency."

A similar standard of practice could be applied with profit to another form of transportation, the motor car. How many drivers of cars know for a certainty when they set out across streets thickly strewn with traffic whether their brakes will stop the wheels in a swift second after the foot is applied—whether they are complete masters of the mechanisms they are guiding down the highway?

Statistics recently gathered indicate that one of the chief causes of car accidents is defective brakes. One way to cut down the hazards of fast motor travel is for every driver occasionally to test the gripping power of his brakes, perhaps each time he leaves the garage. And of course the motorist who already knows his brakes are "not taking hold as they should," ought to voluntarily rule himself off the road until they are fixed.

3,500 Lunches An Hour.

Three thousand five hundred lunches can be served in an hour at a new quick-service restaurant opened in London. It has been designed for the workers in Carpenters' Road, N.W. To mark the opening the huge family of girls and men sat down to a Christmas dinner of roast turkey and plum pudding as the guests of Sir Louis Barin.

Headmasters for Three Generations.

A record of three generations in the headmastership of a London school is created by the announcement that Mr. J. E. Taylor, Classical sixth form master of Tonbridge School, has been appointed to the headmastership of Sir Walter St. John's School, Battersea, S.W.

The position of headmaster has already been held by Mr. Taylor's family for 59 years.

He will succeed his father, who in turn was appointed when his own father retired from the post.

Succeeding Father.

His father, Dr. J. G. Taylor, who retires next month, has been headmaster for twenty-five years, while his grandfather, Mr. William Taylor, held the position for thirty-four years.

Mr. J. E. Taylor, who is 32, will be one of London's youngest headmasters.

Sir Walter St. John's School, which is one of the largest secondary schools in London, was founded in 1700.

Statue Tarred and Feathered.

There has been a second outrage at Wallington Hall, in Northumberland, the home of Sir Charles Trevelyan, a former Minister of Education.

The historic flag that is flown outside the hall by Sir Charles as Lord Lieutenant of the County was stolen the day after his defeat at the General Election. The affair was said at the time to be the work of political opponents.

New unknown car intruders have broken into the grounds during the night and tarred and feathered the beautiful statues in front of the hall as well as the front door.

Duck Under a Tramcar.

Three ducks escaped from a crate on a lorry in Mare-street, Hackney, E., and tried to cross the busy road.

Two of the birds were picked up but the third went under a tramcar. The driver pulled up at once, and spectators crowded round and tried to rescue the duck. It was wedged under the tramcar, however, and before it could be released one of the floorboards had to be removed.

The duck was injured and bleeding but quacked loudly when it was freed.

The sanatorium at Mount Parker is being demolished, and work to that effect has already been started. The sanatorium was built by Messrs. We understand the company does not intend to erect another building on the site.

To Observe Goethe Week.

For the hundredth anniversary of Goethe's passing, which falls upon March 22, German commemorations on a comprehensive scale already are being planned. A Goethe Week will be organized and not only in Weimar and Frankfurt, the two Goethe towns, but in all large German as well as in foreign cities, such as Rome, the great poet's memory will be honoured. The leading theatres throughout Germany and Austria will present his plays. Prof. Kuhnemann of Breslau will deliver a series of lectures in America upon Goethe and his works. It is probable that a series of German postage stamps will be issued bearing the head of the poet at various ages.

Blind Man Called as a Juror.

When a man was empanelled at the Old Bailey as a juror, it was discovered that he was blind.

He was asked if he would like to be excused service, but he replied that he would prefer to do his duty as a citizen if his blindness did not interfere with the administration of justice.

Judge Gregory said that the man's sense of public duty did him credit, but, as there was an alleged forged document in the case, he was afraid that sight was necessary.

The blind man expressed his regret at being unable to serve, and his place was taken by another man.

A Busy Port Once Again.

Odessa is the largest port on the Black Sea and the fifth largest in the Soviet Union, with a population in the neighbourhood of 500,000. Because of its location on the Black Sea, Odessa, which is one of the most modern Soviet cities in point of architectural construction, has always been distinctly cosmopolitan in character. The part of Odessa which is near the railroad station looks dingy and down at the heel. But the city theatre and some of the large public buildings in the neighbourhood of the quay are in better condition. Ships flying the flags of many countries are at anchor in the harbour and furnish evidence that Odessa, after years of stagnation, is again a busy port.

Just a Carriage Draw-bar.

A draw-bar broke between two carriages of a train at Mansion House Station.

It delayed the service between Mansion House and Aldgate East for half an hour, causing hundreds of people to be held up.

Delayed the arrival of Mr. Lawson Walton at East Ham Police Court, where he was to appear in a case for the Director of Public Prosecutions.

No Night for Monuments.

One by one Paris's famous monuments and buildings are being illuminated by the flood-lighting system. The Madeleine, the Place de la Concorde, the Arc de Triomphe, the Grand Palais and Notre Dame have already been so treated. The Vendôme Column was added to this list recently. The shaft itself is lit by white projects, while the statue of Napoleon which crowns it is bathed in gold and stands out very clearly. It is now proposed to illuminate both facades of the Elysee Palace, the official residence of the President of France, and projectors are to be placed both in the gardens fronting on the Champs Elysees and in the rue du Faubourg Saint-Honore.

Where All Are Linguists.

There is probably no other town in Europe where foreign languages are so widely spoken among the masses as in Riga. Every chauffeur, every employee of a bank or of a shop, every policeman, must, besides his own language, also speak Russian and German. These three languages are so indispensable in everyday life that most of the Riga children speak them all without having ever studied them. At the local schools. The youth of Riga can well be called "polyglots."

We would draw our readers' attention to an advertisement appearing in this issue in which details of an innovation by the management of the King's Theatre are given. Starting from to-morrow, continuous showings of British News Reels will be given on Wednesdays and Saturdays from 11.45 a.m. to 2 p.m. at the following prices: 50 cents upstairs and 30 cents downstairs, including entertainment tax.

JESUITS' HARD LIFE IN SPAIN*THEIR EXPULSION FROM COUNTRY PROBABLE*CATHOLIC COLLEGE
SUPERIOR HEAVILY FINED

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

MADRID, Jan. 20.
It is persistently reported in the capital that the expulsion of the Jesuits from Spain and the confiscation of their property is imminent.

The Prime Minister, Senor Azana, in an interview with Reuters representative to-day denied that a decree had actually been signed dissolving the Jesuit Order and providing for the seizure of their property.

It is, however, suggested that the statement is a "half-truth." It is rumoured that such a decree while not signed, has actually been drafted, and is merely awaiting President Zamora's signature.

The confiscation of all the property of the Jesuit Order would presumably follow immediately upon the promulgation of the decree, but as most of it is not held in the name of the Order, there may be legal difficulties in enforcing expropriation.

Convent Closed.
Meanwhile, the feud between the Republicans and the Traditionalists, who represent the more militant Roman Catholics still goes on. As a sequel to the recent rioting and bloodshed at Bilbao, the Minister of the Interior has ordered the closing of the convent, from which, it is alleged, shots were fired.

The Superior of the Catholic College, where the police arrested persons who were not members of the College, has been fined ten thousand pesetas.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Jan. 21.
Lord Hardinge, writing in the Times on the Russian timber question, says it is clear that the year plan is not intended to improve the standard of living in Russia but is for economic aggression against the foremost capitalist countries. "It is now well-known that Russia is depriving her own people of the absolute necessities in order to dislocate world markets." As an example there is almost a famine of timber for internal Russian consumption. The Anglo-Russian Economic Society possesses material clearly showing that every commodity exported from Russia is "a deficit commodity in Russia."

RIGA, Jan. 21.
A general collection of scrap-iron has been ordered in certain districts as part of the maximum mobilization of the Soviet's internal iron and steel resources, consequent on official reports that only 15,000 tons of pig-iron and 13,000 tons of steel represent the present output, whereas the 1932 quota of agricultural and other machinery requires an average daily output of 25,000 tons of pig-iron and 20,000 tons of steel.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

RIGA, Jan. 20.
A number of new mass trials are being organized by the Soviet authorities for "performance" in the next three weeks with the object of impressing upon the people the importance of loyalty to the Five Year Plan.

Following an investigation by a special commission into the causes of inefficiency in the Transport, Food and other Commissariats throughout the U.S.S.R., hundreds of officials have been arrested for corruption and criminal neglect.

Forty-five people, including the heads of the Fruit and Vegetable Trust, have been arrested in Leningrad.

Twenty-one officials and a number of workmen are to be committed for trial as a result of the Commission's investigations into the Inventions Department.

BALANCE OF HOME

PROBABLE

(Reuter's Special Service.)

LONDON, Jan. 21.
It is believed that a complete change of fiscal policy is contained in the report of the Cabinet sub-committee which has been investigating the question of the balance of trade. The report will shortly be submitted to a full meeting of the Cabinet whereby it will have to be considered in detail before any decision can be taken as to what policy is to be adopted. All rumors of a possible agreement among members of the Cabinet are premature, as the question has not yet been considered in its entirety, only part of the report having so far been submitted to the Cabinet. Forecasts of the classes of goods to be taxed or the extent of the tariff are also premature at present.

Sir Malcolm Campbell, Britain's most famous racing motorist, is leaving England for Daytona, Florida, in a fortnight, with the object of making a fresh attempt, in February, on his own world land speed record of 235.735 miles an hour.

Since the creation of that remarkable record, modifications and improvements have been introduced into his car, the Bluebird, in which the record was established, and Sir Malcolm expresses confidence that without straining at all, the car is now capable of a considerably higher speed.

Walter Lindrum failed at a difficult cannon soon after resuming this afternoon with his score standing at 4,000 unfinished. The completed break was 1,137, which compares with his own previous world record of 3,605.

Another record was immediately created in that Joe Davis, the professional champion of England, his opponent in the match, compiled a thousand break when he followed Lindrum to the table after the world record had been set.

Davis was 1,131 unfinished at the end of the afternoon session, and he added 110 on resuming, breaking down at a difficult red loser. The full break was 1,377.

This is the first time in the history of the game that two players have registered breaks of a thousand or more in successive innings.

The Diet reassembled this morning after the New Year Recess, but it is virtually certain to be dissolved this afternoon for the purpose of enabling the Seiyukai Party to seek a working majority in the Lower House by a General Election, which is expected to be held about February 20.

At present, the Seiyukai Party has only 171 seats and the Minseitō Party 240 out of a total of 408.

The dissolution is expected to be ordered as soon as Mr. Inukai, Mr. Yoshizawa, and Mr. Takahashi have finished outlining the Government's policies without giving the Minseitō Party an opportunity of introducing a vote of non-confidence.

GENEVA, Jan. 21.
The conditions whereunder the Manchurian Commission will begin its task are different from those which the Council expected at the close of the last meeting, declared M. Briand when informing his colleagues of his appointment to the Commission, but asserted that the solemn undertakings recorded by two unanimous resolutions of the Council which remained a formal guarantee against the pursuit of territorial ambitions in Manchuria justify the Council holding an exceptional situation which must come to a normal conclusion as rapidly as possible in conformity with the resolution of September 30.

"In order to avoid the present method becoming a precedent," Poland lodged a formal expression of regret that the Commission does not include representatives of the non-permanent members of the Council.

MANCHESTER GUARDIAN'S
SARCASM*"WHEN IS A SOLDIER NOT A SOLDIER?"

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Jan. 21.
As a curtain-raiser to a series of four long articles on "The League and Manchuria" by "A Student of the League," the first of which reads distinctly unfavourably towards Japan, a Manchester Guardian editorial referring to the Japanese complaints of bandit attacks caustically propounds a new conundrum, viz: "When is a soldier not a soldier?" The answer seems to be "When he is a Chinese who has neglected to take the technical precaution of declaring war on you." He then becomes merely a low bandit, but in the light of what we all know now the world should be able to decide quite easily who are the real "bandits" in Manchuria to-day. The editorial further opines that Japan has inflicted a wound on the world body politic which will not easily heal.

GERMANY'S BITTER
ACCUSATION*"FRANCE HAS TORPEDOED LAUSANNE"

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Jan. 20.
France is being accused in Germany of deliberately torpedoing the Lausanne Reparations Conference, following official admission that the interested Powers are not likely to meet on Monday.

The British Government has not officially admitted a postponement, but the Foreign Office states that conversations between the Governments chiefly concerned have not yet concluded and "it is evident that the Conference cannot be begun as early as January 25."

Further conversations are said to be in progress and the British Government hope that it may be possible to come to a satisfactory agreement on the course of procedure to be adopted in the next few days.

News of the "postponement" of the Lausanne Conference reached Berlin too late for comment in official circles, but there is no doubt that the Government deeply regrets the development, fearing that it is bound to aggravate difficulties, not only of Germany, but of the whole world.

Patience Evaporating.

BERLIN, Jan. 20.
The patience of German politicians has been evaporating rapidly as the possibility of the Lausanne Conference meeting on January 25 fast recedes into the distance.

Many of the newspapers express the opinion that France has successfully torpedoed the Conference.

Government quarters emphasize that they will refuse to agree to a prolongation of the Hoover Moratorium until 1933 as this would merely postpone the solution of the reparations problem.

POWERFUL GERMAN

BY FRENCH GENERAL

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

PARIS, Jan. 21.
The sensational allegation that Germany is preparing a powerful army despite the Treaty of Versailles was, says Reuter, made to the Foreign Affairs Committee in the French Chamber in Paris yesterday.

The accusers were General Bourgeois and M. Ecard, members of the Senate Commission which was entrusted with the task of making a report on armaments.

General Bourgeois declared that Germany was organizing her industries and her armaments along parallel lines which would permit a very rapid mobilization of war supplies.

He added that extremely active propaganda was being carried on throughout the country to inculcate a spirit of revenge even among school-children.

M. Ecard declared that the German Budget contained, under camouflaged headings, a much larger expenditure for military purposes than was admitted.

The allegations, which will be discussed at a later date, are stated to have made a profound impression upon the Foreign Affairs Committee.

NOT ENOUGH GOLD

INTERNATIONAL ANTI-GOLD GROUP

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Jan. 21.
The inadequacy of gold for world requirements has again been raised by the Times, which, after pointing out that the annual production is insufficient to meet demands due to France and the United States, says these countries have most to fear from the gold problem, and suggests that recent events show that certain countries would require little encouragement to link up their currencies with sterling, "provided the British Budget is balanced and that there is no enforced issue of currency, sterling will make a better basis than gold."

Drastic Measures.

Referring to the suggestion of a correspondent that silver might be used as a mono-metallic basis for currency and that the British Empire, South America, Asia, Japan, Germany, Italy, Scandinavia and most small European countries would probably be willing to form a sterling or silver group with a gold group consisting of the United States, France and one or two smaller countries, the Times remarks that while no-one pretends that this is an ideal solution to the world's economic troubles it will become a practical issue "unless the forces which destroyed the working gold standard are themselves destroyed by common sense nations."

IF FRANCE WOULD MAKE

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, Jan. 21.
"If France could make a gesture to the world as great as that contained in the Beau Geste it would lead a long way towards settlement of economic problems" was the opinion expressed by Mr. F. C. Goodenough, president at a meeting of the shareholders of Barclay's Bank. He drew attention to the heavy surpluses of gold of France and America, both of whose budgets would reveal substantial deficits, and asserted that unless some means were found to make gold circulate more freely gold would no longer be capable of serving as a basis of currency, credit and measurement of world prices, in which case those countries would inevitably be faced with enormous losses.

A Peshawar telegram states that many indications in the Peshawar District show a gradual return to normal conditions and of increasing distrust of Congress. Arrears of revenue are being paid regularly. Many Red-shirt uniforms, which is the outward badge of Congress in this province, have been handed in, while picketing is decreasing.

CANTON, Jan. 21.
Dr. C. C. Wu, after a series of conferences with General Chan Tsiang and others, has finally decided to accept the Governorship of Kwangtung, a post which the Canton National Government offered him prior to its resignation in favour of the new Nanking Government. It is reported that he will take up his post on Jan. 25. Mr. Lin Yun Koy, the outgoing Governor, is busy winding up his accounts to be turned over to his successor.

LEADERS PLEDGE ALLEGIANCE

CANTON, Jan. 21.
The leaders of the Southern faction, including General Chen Tsiang, Admiral Chen Chak, Dr. C. C. Wu, General Pei Chung Hsi, General Li Yang King, General Yu Hon Mow, and Mr. Lam Yick Chung, in a circular telegram issued to-day in explanation of the establishment of the three executive departments for the administration of the political, military and Kuomintang affairs of the Southwest, pledged their support for the new Nanking Government. They maintained that the establishment of such executive departments was entirely in accordance with the decisions reached in the last 4th Plenary Kuomintang Congress and therefore not illegal. They also contended that there was a necessity for the existence of such departments, the main object being to relieve the heavy duties and responsibilities of the Central Government. They agreed to take orders from Nanking and abide by its decisions. They refused the charges that they were holding up the Canton Customs surplus and are trying to form an independent government of the Southwest.

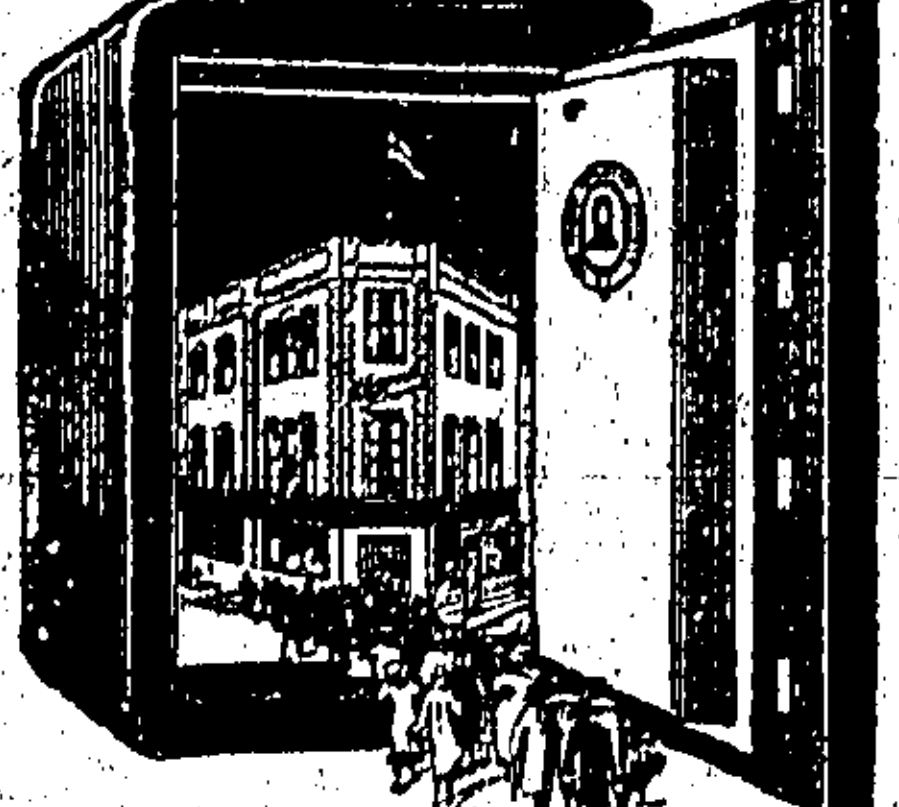

Situation Brightens.

The assurances of Canton's support for Nanking, as contained in the circular telegram mentioned above, appeared to brighten up the situation considerably. The rumors of anti-Nanking activities in Canton and the disagreement among the different factions here have been set aside for the time being. Possibly through the persuasions of Dr. C. C. Wu, Mr. Yu Yon and other civilian leaders of influence, the Canton Government is again in harmony with the Nanking regime.

INTERPORT RUGGER.

FINAL TRIAL GAME TO-MORROW.

A very interesting rugger game is promised on the Club ground on Saturday when the Club Interport XV. are due to meet a team made up from the "Rest of the Colony." This will be the interporters' last match before they sail for Shanghai and as the "Rest" will include some of the best players in the Services, it will be a good test of the Hong Kong team.

G. A. L. Plummer, a former interport man, is leading the "Rest," this being his last game before leaving the Colony on transfer. The probable interport combination is not yet announced, but it is presumably the same XV. that played against the United Services last week-end.

The "Rest" will be represented by the following in this game: Lt. Gossling (Navy); Lt. Keith Murray (Argylls); Lt. Stevenson (Argylls); G. A. L. Plummer (Club); Pte. Lewis (Borderers); A. F. Jenkins (Club); Lt. Charsley (Navy); Lt. Comdr. Crick (Navy); Lt. Robertson (Navy); Cpl. Souther (Borderers); A. B. Deykin (Navy); R. A. Doggett (Navy); Lt. Creve-Raud (Borderers); F. R. Burch (Club); Lt. Hubback (Navy).

LADIES' HOCKEY.

TEAMS FOR TO-MORROW.

The following will represent the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club in a Caer Clark Cup match against the C.B.A. (Ladies Hockey Section) on the C.B.A. Ground at King's Park to-morrow at 3.30 p.m.:

M. Bird, E. M. Gray, J. Small, E. Ross, B. Pope, C. Ferguson, J. McElroy, M. Allan Jones, E. Bismar, A. G. Orme and E. Blackburn.

There will also be a match between the R.A.O.C. and the Hong Kong Ladies' Hockey Club 2nd XI. at Sookunpo at 3.30 p.m. The following will represent Hong Kong Ladies:

M. King, N. Ferguson, A. Nicol, E. O'Hagan, A. Owen-Hughes, E. Franklin, R. King, J. Whyte, P. M. Harrop, M. Smalley and H. Knill.

FANLING HUNT.

TWO GOOD RUNS ON WEDNESDAY.

[By "REYNARD"]

Meeting at Sheungshui on Wednesday, the usual large mid-week contingent was there to enjoy two good runs. Despite a hot afternoon and a following wind, hounds were well together and hunted out an interesting line starting near the patrol path by Crown Ridge. From here we had a good view of hounds as they swung left from the pass through Table Hill down to the far side of the patrol path and along the slopes of Sandy Ridge. Recrossing the patrol road once more some tricky country was met before finishing the run just beyond San Uk Ling Village.

The Second Run.

The second run was the usual one for this meet, from the "gallop" back to near kennels, which never fails to provide good fun as it is one of the most sporting bits of country at Fanling. And here, if I may, I would ask our thrusters, on those occasions when the going is good, to avoid riding on top of hounds and keep well to a flank. Nothing ruins a good hunting hound quicker than being ridden over and they are so hard to come by out here that a little care in this respect is well worth the trouble.

HOCKEY.

VARSITY DRAWS WITH ST. ANDREW'S.

The Varsity mixed team met the St. Andrew's Club in a friendly match at the Diocesan Girls' School ground yesterday, and the game ended in a goalless draw.

The Varsity was hard-pressed during the second half, when the Club attacked vigorously but were unable to draw first blood. The game was interesting though at times scrappy.

CRICKET NOTES.

CRUSHING DEFEAT OF THE CLUB.

[By R. ABBIT.]

Curiously enough, last Saturday one of the most illuminating results was a draw. I refer to the K.C.C. and University game at Pokfulam, and as I read it, it means that K.C.C. gave practically, (barring mirages) lost all chance of winning the Senior Shield. I shall revert to this later. As regards the game, I learn from one of the players, in whose judgment I have confidence, that it was a very good one. Play continued until ten minutes to six and even then the light was really good enough to justify a continuance. But the League rules definitely fix five forty-five p.m. as the end of play and they should be observed. It is, however, interesting to note the unusual fact that last Saturday week one could have played at the Valley until six p.m., and last Saturday until six at Pokfulam.

The Play.

The University were fortunate enough to go in first and, thanks to a good first wicket stand by Rodrigues and Anderson, and a brilliant, if lucky, innings by E. L. Gosano later, put up the very decent total of a hundred and seventy-five. I am told that Anderson was lucky to get the decision in an l.b.w. appeal when he was in the twenties, but, as in this case, there are hundreds of matches lost and won on a decision and who shall say who was right? The only sure l.b.w. decision I know is when both batsman and bowler agree with the umpire in an adverse verdict, and then they are all wrong about five times in a hundred. It is marvellous how the ball can miss the sticks. Burnett brought off a hat-trick but I fancy he has bowled better. Goodwin was definitely off form with the ball.

K.C.C. Bat.

The K.C.C. went in about twenty past four with roughly an hour and a half to get one hundred and seventy-six, though had Raven caught Gosano it might have been much less. The task was not impossible, as it is a very quick scoring ground if the bowling is bad. But the University trundlers did not get wild and continued to bowl just short of a length, while MacKay was very slow, showing all his old failing of hitting his off-sticks directly to a fielder. Teddy Fincher was free and the remainder went for it and nearly lost the match in trying to win it. A draw was inevitable by that time. I fancy that Leyal is making a mistake in altering his batting order so frequently. There are times of course when it may pay to put your hitters in early but taking things by and large it pays best in the long run, to fix your order at the beginning of the season and to stick to it.

Craigengower Beat the Club.

There is no getting away from the fact that C.C.C. beat the Club fair and square on Saturday last. The latter were unfortunate in that Pearce and Bowker were unable to turn out, while Hayward picked his back at practice and was in hospital. I hear with regret that he had rather a poor time of it as apparently there were some complications. Everyone will wish him a speedy recovery, and it is most sincerely to be hoped that he will be able to play against the United Services at China New Year. The Club also had slightly the worse of a wicket which crumbled very badly but this does not excuse their poor display. With the possible exception of Beck all their bowling was dead out of form, while apart from Mitchell, who played a breezy if lucky knock, and Owen Hughes, who played excellent cricket until he was bowled by a ball that came in a lot, their batting was non-existent. Bob Lee took full advantage of the wicket and for the second week in succession brought off a fine bowling performance, taking 6 wickets for thirty-six runs. Owen, who had two for twenty-seven, had the unusual and painful experience of being laid out by a red-hot return from Eric Mitchell which took him full on the solar plexus.

I.R.C.

The Indians made very short work of the Navy side which only included four of the previous week's team. The Navy definitely play their cricket for pleasure and, besides service calls which keep regular members out of the side very often, they have to give every one a turn. It may not make for a strong team but it is a most sporting attitude.

The Struggle for the Shield.

Apart from K.C.C. who are more or less out of it owing to having only collected three points out of a possible nine, the two teams fighting it out are C.C.C. and I.R.C. who have each scored nine points out of nine possible. Personally I don't think there's a shade of doubt that the Indians are the better side.

LOCAL CRICKET.

CIVIL SERVICE TEAMS FOR WEEK-END.

The following will represent the Civil Service C.C. in their friendly matches to-morrow:—

1st Team: H.R.C.C. on H.R.C.C. ground:—B. D. Evans (Capt.), J. E. Richardson, G. R. Sayer, F. J. de Rome, E. B. Reid, F. J. Ling, F. Baker, R. M. Wood, J. Barrow, E. W. Hamilton, and J. F. McGowan.

2nd Team: South Wales Borderers at Happy Valley:—B. C. K. Hawkins (Capt.), A. E. Wood, J. M. Wilson, S. Randle, N. Bebbington, A. W. Grimmett, F. Matthews, R. H. Woodman, J. F. Wilmott, R. G. Robertson, and R. A. J. Simpson.

3rd Team: H.K.V.D.C. on G.S.C.C. ground at 2 p.m. on Sunday:—J. E. Richardson (Capt.), R. M. Wood, J. F. McGowan, B. C. K. Hawkins, N. Bebbington, R. S. W. Paterson, R. H. Griffiths, R. A. J. Simpson, J. M. Wilson, F. Matthews, and C. H. G. Bradley.

SUNDAY'S MATCH.

The following will represent Mr. A. C. Beck's XI. against the Civil Service Cricketers Club on the latter's ground on Sunday at 2 p.m.:—W. D. Folley, S. V. Gittins, F. S. W. Smith, L. D. Kilbos, F. V. Lee, R. Lee, L. Whippa, F. A. Elliott, R. R. Davies, J. M. Stanley, A. C. Beck.

Craigengower are temperamental. When they are good they are very good, but when they are bad they would lose to the Blind School. They very nearly lost to the Civil Service—in fact if the latter team had had enough batting to justify a place in the Second League they would have been properly roasted up. Their one chance to my mind is that last year's history may repeat itself and that the I.R.C. may become over confident. But I do not think it. The game takes place to-morrow and the Indians are at home. It helps them a bit, but it unhelps Craigengower a lot more. The latter team never seems quite jumpy when away from their nice little garden in the corner of the Valley. They may draw the game but personally I think the Indians will win.

Other Games To-morrow.

Notwithstanding statements in the papers that C.S.C.C. will be playing I.R.A. to-morrow they actually are visiting the Club, where their hosts have taken the game so seriously that they have included no less than three of the regular first eleven. They will probably win unless the C.S.C.C. resort by sending their second eleven to deputize, in which case I am not so sure. Legs having thus been extended, I might add that the Volunteer sports are on and that I imagine both teams are decimated by the same disease!

K.C.C. will have another go on what was the Navy, or what was nearly was the K.C.C. new ground. They will probably win fairly easily.

China New Year.

If there is going to be a good game on February 6 and 8 it is most sincerely to be hoped that Pearce and Tom Hayward will be able to play. Owen Hughes cannot carry the side alone and Duckitt is dead out of form. I presume the Rugby men are not to be considered. If so, and assuming that T. E. Pearce will play, but not captain or keep wicket, the following team occurs to me as a possible one:—Owen Hughes (captain), T. E. Pearce, A. W. Hayward, A. C. L. Bowker, E. R. Duckitt, H. J. Armstrong, J. E. Richardson, R. M. Wood (wicket-keeper), A. C. Beck, G. R. Sayer and Alan Reid. I might explain that I understand that Pearce has expressed a wish to give up the Captaincy, otherwise of course he would skipper the side. I have included Armstrong as, though he is a slow fielder and a slow scoring bat, he has great defensive powers and I am always scared of the club batting. Personally on form, I should pick E. B. Reid but I don't quite see who to leave out, and I am not quite sure if two days in and is not too much for his leg injury which I understand is a legacy from the War. On present form Wood is as likely as Mitchell to be get runs and is a better keeper than both are admittedly make shifts. The team is well enough balanced save that it is weak in outfielders. The Services team will be mostly Army. Nothing is settled yet but I imagine Capt. Burnett may play and possibly MacFarlane, tho' the latter has done nothing lately. However, we have a fortnight or so to go before that.

SWOLLEN-HEADED TENNIS PLAYERS.

L.T.A. CHIEF'S 5 POINTS ON BAD BEHAVIOUR.

Behaviour at lawn tennis tournaments was criticised by Mr. A. C. Griffiths, chairman of the council, at the annual meeting of the Lawn Tennis Association in London.

Mr. Griffiths said that the general conduct and sportsmanship at tournaments were better than ever, but unless the germ of doubtful behaviour was eradicated the game would ultimately suffer. He summarised questionable conduct under these headings:

Questioning and chatting with the umpire or linesmen; Standing still, stopping the game, and glaring at those officials; Losing a point, the temper—and the ball by hitting it into space;

Turning up late for a game without apology, "as if the player owned the earth";

Leaving a tournament without paying entrance fee.

"Much of this regrettable behaviour," said Mr. Griffiths, "can be attributed to swollen head."

Looking for Lengians.

There was too much fulsome praise and too much readiness to discover future Lengians.

Speaking of criticism of the council, Mr. Griffiths said: "Some of the members of the council are said to be too old to do their work. Anyhow they will not hesitate to take steps to see to it that the spirit of the game is properly upheld."

Lord d'Abernon, who presided, warmly commended the scheme for coaching at public schools.

"It is being demonstrated more and more," he said, "that lawn tennis of the Davis Cup level is a young man's game. Future champions must be caught young."

BE UP AND DOING!

Don't give in to headaches and "nerves"! Don't let the heat and humidity ruin your health and spoil your happiness. Always keep a bottle of Genasprin handy—it's a woman's best friend in the East. For Genasprin, the pure and therefore safe brand of aspirin, is wonderful for relieving all sorts of pain, and giving you and your children deep, restful sleep and for soothing your nerves. Besides, Genasprin leaves no bad after-effects whatever and "retains its power in spite of repeated administration."

"Without the slightest risk." A famous Doctor wrote in "The Medical Times"—"What chiefly distinguishes Genasprin from the numerous other brands is the fact that, owing to its absolute purity, it can be prescribed much more freely than those without the slightest risk of toxic symptoms. The frequent use of small doses of Genasprin affords effective relief from pain, produces no nausea or other reaction, does not create a habit or craving, retains its power in spite of repeated administration, causes no disturbance of digestion and is not dissolved by the gastric juices but expelled from the body with considerable speed."

[By "MASHIE-NIBBLICK"]

I understand that the Kowloon Golf Club are arranging their second annual Dance at the Peninsula Hotel on February 12. Last year members and their friends to the number of over 200 enjoyed a thoroughly good time and there is every indication that this number will be well exceeded this year. The Club has been somewhat handicapped in the past in regard to social activities in that firstly the Club House has not offered suitable accommodation and secondly it is seldom that members may take out ladies owing to the fact that the course is only 9 holes and its use by ladies has, in consequence, been restricted. The first handicap will be removed when the new Club House is finished, and the second will be alleviated to some extent when full advantage is taken of the allocation of Thursday as a day on which registered lady players will have priority over purely men's games. The social aspect of Golf or any other Clubs is an important one. This has already been recognised by the local Gentlemen and Ladies' Hockey Clubs whose annual gatherings are amongst the most enjoyable functions of the year.

I understand that local Clubs have been asked for any suggestions they may have to make regarding the manner in which the next Colony's Championship may be played, or rather the next "Championship of Golf Clubs of the Colony" which appears to be the officially suggested title. I have heard it suggested that the Championship might be made an open event and that the number of members taking part from any particular Club should not be limited except by handicap. Another suggestion is that the Championship be decided over 72 instead of 36 holes and that 36 of these might be played on the New Course at Fanling and 36 on the Old Course. As regards the first suggestion I presume that some method would be arrived at for determining a common standard as regards handicaps. A handicap of, say 5, at Kowloon Golf Club would I suppose be equivalent to a handicap of about 9 at Fanling. As regards the second suggestion, if this were adopted there would, on the Championship day, have to be some restriction on the use of the Fanling courses by members who were not taking part in the Championship. However, there is plenty of time for these suggestions to be considered if they are officially put forward and in that event the Royal Hong Kong Golf Club Committee may be depended on to give them due consideration.

Last weekend was the last, but one opportunity to qualify for the Captain's Cup competition at Kowloon Golf Club and J. D. Thomson (75-3) and W. Groves (69-12) were successful. The final opportunity of qualifying will take place next weekend (January 23-24) and the first round will be played on Sunday January 31.

The following Chinese New Year competitions have been arranged at the Kowloon Golf Club for the Chinese New Year week-end:—On Saturday Feb. 6 a "one club" competition is to be held; on Sunday the 7th the "Fear" Cup competition will be played for on 36 holes. Holes Medal play (the draw will be made on Saturday the 6th and will be posted at the Club House, competitors to make their own arrangements as to starting times) on Monday the 8th the annual married single match will be played for the "Cogan" Cup.

Entries are also being received for an "American" tournament at Kowloon Golf Club to be played 100 Match play from February to May.

THE AMATEUR HAWKER.

STREET TOUR WITH CHEAP TOYS.

"A GOOD LIVING."

HUMOUR OF GUTTER SALESMANSHIP.

Is there a fortune to be made in street-hawking in London? Writes a Special Representative of the London Morning Post. After a day's perambulation of the streets I am not exactly rpling in wealth, but my experiences have shown me that there is a comfortable living to be made out of hawking balloons in the gutter.

Yet when I emerged diffidently from the back-door of a certain Wardour-street costumier I asked myself, had I really succeeded in making myself look like a genuine street-hawker?

My stock-in-trade caused me misgivings. I had purchased 30 toy balloons and six monkeys on springs.

It did not take me long to realise that my worst fears had been groundless. No one took the slightest notice of me. I passed a fellow hawker selling flowers in a tumbler of water. He sniffed contemptuously at me. All was going well.

I made a bee-line—so far as the gutters would allow—for the frequented pitch on the steps of St. Martin-in-the-Fields. There my reception was not warm. "Err, mate, we can't have this," one of the two hawkers in possession bawled at his neighbour. "Two company, three's none." Unwilling to provoke a quarrel so early in my career, I withdrew my claim.

Balloons Not In Fashion.

For the next hour I wandered slowly westward. No one seemed aware of my presence, except the policeman, who had a way of appearing from nowhere and inviting me to move on. As I was nearing Hyde Park Corner, however, I "broke my duck." A cab-horse, resenting my presence in the gutter, turned its head suddenly towards me and bit a piece out of my biggest and best balloon.

There was a loud report and a crowd, hoping for the worst, assembled. I remonstrated. The cabby hedged. But the crowd was on my side, and I succeeded in extorting compensation to the value of two pence.

Knightsbridge turned away in horror. I stood forlornly for a quarter of an hour outside the Albert Hall—without effect. I interrupted the shopping crowds in Kensington High street. Every time I drew a blank. At one house I made bold to ring at the front door and ask if anyone wanted a balloon. My reception was not such as to encourage a repetition of the experiment.

At length I found a benefactor for he could hardly be called a customer. He was an elderly man of military appearance with a white moustache. After adjusting his monocle he looked me up and down, and said: "I am going to give you something, because you look as if you are in need of a good meal." After much fumbling in his pocket, he produced two half-pennies but he wound by pride by refusing to accept a balloon.

Friendly Advice.

Shortly afterwards I met a stumpy little man in an old macintosh which reached down to his ankles. He was selling matches. "Ain't business wonderful?" he said cheerily. I granted a qualified assent. "It's not one o'clock, and I've already got ten bob."

Then, in tones of kindly civility, "But what brings you 'ere, mate, with your balloons and monkeys? They ain't the thing for Kensington. The only thing the swells in these parts will buy is matches. Balloons ain't respectable like, 'er is monkeys on springs. There ain't no real market for your stuff south of Oxford-street."

Less than an hour later I crossed the rubicon of Oxford-street, and entered that blessed territory where for some reason unknown to me balloons and monkeys are in demand. My luck changed. Two errand boys who were passing on bicycles jammed on their brakes and bought a balloon each.

An adorable looking girl came out of a newspaper shop, took one look at my monkeys on springs, and bought one for a shilling. Within a quarter of an hour I had sold nearly three shillings' worth of goods.

A middle-aged man carrying an opera hat under his arm—it was not three o'clock in the afternoon—bought a monkey. A woman with a spherical figure, carrying a sleeping baby in each arm, bought a balloon, tried to blow it up, and not surprisingly burst it. The babies wroke, screamed, and were not appeased until each had a balloon to play with.

A Monkey Sold.

A massively built Italian boy, looking like an embryo Mussolini, ignoring December's cold blast, came up, sucking an ice. It dripped all over one of my frozen hands; but I forgave him, for he bought a monkey.

As I was moving on, the errand boy who had been my first customer, returned, wished me a happy Christmas, and "cadged" a monkey, for sixpence.

One elderly man gave me sixpence and courteously begged to be excused from taking any of my stock. By four o'clock I had sold out my monkeys and all but six balloons. My takings were 8s. 3d., which represented a profit of more than five shillings.

On my way back, in Shaftesbury-avenue, a well-dressed man asked for the cheapest balloon I had, and handed me half-a-crown. I gave him 2s. 5d. and the balloon which, earlier in the day, the horse had bitten. As I re-entered the costumier's shop I congratulated myself on having taken a rise out of one who had not yet learned how to spend wisely.

When I counted the day's earnings, a doubt entered my mind. Something about the half-grown which had been given to me aroused my suspicions. I tried it on a table and a dull thud was the only sound. It was a "dud."

SHIPBUILDING YEAR.

"ONE OF THE WORST RECORDED."

The year 1931 has been one of the worst ever recorded for the shipbuilding industry, and it cannot be said that there is any prospect of an early improvement (state Messrs. Cammell, Laird, and Co. Ltd., in their annual trade report).

During the twelve months orders were secured for two vessels for the Great Western Railway Company, a cruiser for the British Admiralty, a paddle-steamer for the General Steam Navigation Company, and two tenders for the Corporation of Trinity House. Repair work was scarce, but though the volume was less than in previous years the company's docks were kept fairly well employed. Among the more important repairs undertaken were the overhaul of three whaling factory ships, including the construction of a slipway at the stern of one of the vessels.

The total tonnage of vessels docked and repaired during the year was about 437,200.

AID FOR FRENCH LINE.

GOVERNMENT ADVICE, TO DEPUTIES.

Paris, Dec. 23.—The question of the reorganisation of the French Line this afternoon occupied the Finance Commission of the Chamber, to which it was sent back yesterday's vote, and it was returned once more to be publicly debated.

Strong pressure has been put upon deputies to realise the seriousness of the step should they reject the Government proposal to put the Line upon its feet.

The "Temps" this evening states that to do so, would perhaps definitely ruin an enterprise of national character, the elements of which remain healthy.

The Line's bankruptcy which must follow unless the State steps in before the end of the year, would, the "Temps" declares, deal a dire blow not only to French shipping, but also to French prestige, and it should be remembered that other nations, as for example Italy and the United States, yearly give larger subsidies to shipping, than is now asked of France.

Another authority emphasises that the failure to pass the measure would throw "out of work" 20,000 men engaged at sea and 10,000 in the shipyard.
